Prostitution sting leads to arrest of four 'johns'

Project Return. Three youth found and taken to safety; those facing charges range in age from 21 to 83

BERNICE PONTANILLA

bernice.pontanilla@metronews.ca

Four men — including an 83-year-old — are facing engaging in prostitution charges following a police sting called "Project Return."

During a news conference on Friday, spokesman Const. Eric Hofley said Project Return took place on Thursday and resulted in the four arrests, six traffic tickets being handed out and four vehicles seized under the Highway Traffic Act's prostitution offences.

In addition, 26 addresses were checked for missing youth, with three located and taken to a safe place.

"We are, at this point, concentrating on those people who are out there attempting to exploit them, so certainly in this incident we went after the johns," Hofley said, adding the four arrested are aged 21, 28, 48 and 83.

Police worked with several organizations, including StreetReach Winnipeg, MaryMound, the Child Protection Branch and Mamawi, on Project Return.

Hofley said even though this effort wrapped up on Thursday, their partnership with these groups continues.

"There's open dialogue between our officers and these resources every day.... They all have the same goal of ensuring the safety of these young women," he said.

The public can aid police efforts to curb prostitution by reporting areas where transactions are happening, Hofley added.

For missing youth, he suggested to parents "if you have someone in your care, in your home, that you're not sure of, friends of your children, that sort of thing, you might want to pick up the phone" and call police, especially if the child is not forthcoming with information.

Winnipeg police spokesman Const. Eric Hofley said they'll continue to work with local organizations such as StreetReach, MaryMound and Mamawi to ensure the safety of young women and girls. BERNICE PONTANILLA/METRO

Wasylycia-Leis vows better relationship with First Nations

Mayoral candidate.

New accord would bring city and aboriginal community closer

The city and the aboriginal community need a road map to guide them toward a better working relationship, Judy Wasylycia-Leis said on Friday.

"If I am elected mayor, I am committed to building a new relationship between city hall and Winnipeg's aboriginal citizens," she declared before a crowd of people at Thunderbird House.

Key to Wasylycia-Leis's plan would be establishing a new aboriginal roundtable to tackle such issues as employment, recreation, safety and housing, in cooperation with other government departments.

She said the group would be formed within her first 100 days in office, and would include membership from aboriginal and non-aboriginal community and business leaders.

The roundtable would be asked to develop a written accord between the city and the aboriginal community that outlines expectations and actions for both parties. The agreement would be modeled on a similar one in Thompson.

While Wasylycia-Leis acknowledged the recent creation of the city's Aboriginal Relations Division and the Aboriginal Youth Strategy, she said those measures don't go far enough.

"I think the city has been virtually absent on this front, in terms of being a partner with the aboriginal community," she said. "It's not really about money as much as it's about respect and trust on both sides."

It's estimated Winnipeg will be home to nearly 100,000 aboriginal people by 2020, and it has one of the fastest-growing populations of aboriginal young people in Canada.

Race for mayor

Ouellette announces 'rapid response' team to deal with potholes

A candidate for mayor of Winnipeg says he has a plan to help fix the city's infrastructure woes, without going cap-in-hand to property owners or the other two levels of government.

Robert Falcon Ouellette announced his infrastructure plan on Sunday, saying it would cost $250 million and would not rely on provincial or federal money.

The first step would be an investment in better snow clearing equipment, said Ouellette. The second step would see the city encourage people to report potholes through Facebook and Twitter, as well as through the 311 app or by calling 311. Ouellette said he would set up a "rapid response team" to attend to potholes within three days.

The third step includes creating a $250 million street repair and renewal fund. METRO

Steeves would transfer bus cash to community clubs

$5M. Candidate says money would go towards consolidation and improvement

bernice.pontanilla@metronews.ca

Mayoral candidate Gord Steeves is promising to take $5 million out of a bus rapid transit cash reserve and redirect the funds toward the consolidation and improvement of community clubs.

"I feel this direction is in keeping with my belief that we should take care of and improve what we have before embarking on new and questionable projects," said Steeves during a news conference on Friday outside of the Chalmers Community Centre.

"I realize that these are difficult choices but that is what being mayor is all about."

Steeves said the reserve fund he's discussing contains $8.8 million and is destined for the $590-million second phase of the rapid transit corridor, which would connect the downtown first phase to the University of Manitoba.

Asked if he would force clubs to consolidate, Steeves said it wouldn't be a "top-downing"; instead, community centres would themselves choose to amalgamate.

For Elmwood resident John King, who fought hard against the closure of Kelvin Community Centre on Henderson Highway, Steeves has merely taken a page out of the Mayor Sam Katz 2006-2010 re-election handbook.

"(Steeves) has no originality at all," said King, also citing the property tax freeze and Judy Wasylycia-Leis NDP line.

"This guy is no friend of northeast Winnipeg, no friend of Elmwood or East Kildonan. Even being at Chalmers, I just wonder how he even found the place."

Gord Steeves said if elected mayor, part of his community clubs strategy would see improved services for seniors. BERNICE PONTANILLA/METRO

Dog park. Bowman wants to create family-friendly, more livable downtown

Winnipeg's downtown could be home to more residents — of both the two- and four-legged variety — under a plan announced by mayoral candidate Brian Bowman on Friday.

Standing with his wife, Tracy, and his miniature Labradoodle, Indiana, at a greenspace across from the Canadian Museum for Human Rights, Bowman said the creation of a downtown dog park in that location is just one of the family-friendly features he wants to bring to the area.

Bowman acknowledged one of the barriers for young families is a lack of nearby schools, and pledged to work with the province to address that issue, along with creating more daycare spaces in the core.

He also said he'd establish a new community centre as part of the Parcel 4 development at The Forks, and task downtown agencies with recruiting a grocery store to the area within the next two years. COLIN FAST/FOR METRO

Absent Ford brothers still a strong presence at Toronto mayoral debate

Elephants in the room.

Candidates trade barbs about political family as current mayor remains in hospital with tumour

Rob Ford may be out of the Toronto mayoralty race and his brother Doug not beginning his campaign until Monday, but both Ford brothers were front and centre at a feisty debate Sunday in Toronto.

Doug Ford — who has announced he will replace his brother Rob in the campaign because of his brother's diagnosis of a tumour in his abdomen — was at his brother's bedside on Sunday and not in attendance at the debate.

Nevertheless, the Fords were very present (the elephants in the room, so to speak) as the debate got underway.

Ahead from bed

Though Rob Ford is in the hospital, a new poll shows he already has a healthy lead in the race for the Ward 2 seat.

- Some 59 per cent of those polled Saturday in Etobicoke North said they intend to vote for Ford on Oct. 27, well ahead of the main challenger, Andray Domise, with 26 per cent.

They were the target of many of the barbs and criticisms from other candidates.

Both Olivia Chow and John Tory took jabs at the Ford brothers and each other as they debated their vision for Toronto. The third candidate, Ari Goldkind, who used the opportunity to convince voters he was a viable alternative for mayor, also deftly parried a zinger or two about the Fords.

Doug Ford waits for family members to join him on Friday, before speaking to the media outside his mother's home in the west end of Toronto. CHRIS YOUNG/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chow slammed both the Fords at the very beginning of the debate. "We have four years of the Ford brothers doing a lot of damage in this city," she told the 500-plus crowd. Tory didn't hold back either, saying the cutbacks in the Ford era were one of the reasons for the decrease in funding for the urban tree-planting program in the city.

Despite different platforms and campaign strategies, all three candidates were united in one idea — to begin a new era of politics at city hall.

What's his platform?

Doug Ford to Toronto: 'Stay tuned'

As Rob Ford was holed up in a hospital room awaiting a diagnosis on his tumour, his brother was promising to unleash a campaign that will aim to unseat the family's opponents.

Doug Ford told reporters assembled outside Mount Sinai Hospital that they should "stay tuned" for his campaign platform, to be announced Monday.

The platform's content is a mystery to Torontonians, who have been swept up in the family's chaos since the beginning of the week.

Federal 'cabinet secrets' protected from public access

Access denied. Info on Viagra, military purchases, rail safety and Canadians' thoughts on chemical weapons programs inaccessible

Sexual dysfunction in the Canadian military is such a sensitive topic for the Harper government that federal officials have stamped all information related to it as a cabinet secret, never to be publicly revealed.

And there are a few other subjects the federal Conservatives don't want to talk about, such as why their planned $2-billion purchase of armoured vehicles was cancelled, how Canada feels about chemical weapons proliferation or what Transport Canada thought about rail safety criticism from the auditor general.

Prime Minister Stephen Harper.
AARON VINCENT ELKAIM/THE CANADIAN PRESS

These subjects have become part of a growing list of routine memos, documents and reports that have been caught in a so-called dragnet of cabinet confidences following a stealthy Treasury Board directive in the summer of 2013.

The policy change now requires bureaucrats to consult departmental lawyers on what constitutes a secret, a decision formerly made by the Privy Council Office (PCO) — the PCO is now only consulted on "complex cases only."

The Canadian Press has found dozens of cases excluded under Section 69 of the Access to Information Act, which gives officials the power to withhold records meant to be seen only by the federal cabinet, such as information pertaining to planned cuts to the 2012 program providing free Viagra to the military.

Feds' critics muzzled?

Academics call for equal tax audits

More than 400 academics are demanding the Canada Revenue Agency (CRA) halt its audit of a think-tank, saying the Conservative government is trying to intimidate, muzzle and silence its critics.

In an open letter, the group defends the Canadian Centre for Policy Alternatives, a left-leaning think-tank that was targeted for a political-activity audit partly because it was deemed by the agency to be biased and one-sided.

The new audit program has led to what has been dubbed "advocacy chill," as some groups self-censor to avoid aggravating auditors.

Revenue Minister Kerry-Lynne Findlay has said the tax agency's political-activity audits are conducted at arm's length, and agency officials say their targeting decisions are neutral, non-partisan and balanced. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nearly 40 countries agree to help combat the Islamic State of Iraq and al-Sham

Newly outraged by the beheading of yet another Western hostage, diplomats from around the world are in Paris pressing for a coherent global strategy to combat extremists from the Islamic State of Iraq and al-Sham (ISIS) — minus two of the main players and without any ground troops — in a conflict that threatens to spill beyond the Mideast.

The White House said Sunday it would find allies willing to send combat forces — something the United States has ruled out — but that it was too early to identify them. The U.S. has so far been alone in carrying out airstrikes.

Several Arab countries offered to conduct airstrikes against ISIS, according to a State Department official travelling with Kerry who briefed reporters on condition of anonymity to discuss diplomat developments during his trip.

A second official gave some examples of what the U.S.

would consider a military contribution: providing arms, any kind of training activity and airstrikes.

Muslim-majority countries are considered vital to any operation, although previously there have been only vague offers of help. Iran was struck off the invitation list, and Western officials have made clear they consider Syria's government part of the problem.

"Ultimately, this is a fight within Islam, within Sunni Islam," White House chief of staff Denis McDonough told Fox News on Sunday.

What's in store for Alibaba after IPO?

HOW TO ROLL
Alison Griffiths
metronews.ca

Biggest U.S. IPO's ever

- 2014. Alibaba Group Holding Ltd., US$20.1 billion (expected)
- 2012. Facebook Inc., $16 billion
- 2010. General Motors Co., $15.8 billion

It'll likely take only seconds for investors to fork out a whopping US$32 billion on shares of Alibaba when the Chinese e-commerce gorilla becomes a public company on Friday.

That amount includes some 368 million shares that will be issued with Alibaba's gargantuan, record-setting initial public offering (IPO), plus the nearly 122 million shares that Yahoo Inc. will be selling. Yahoo currently owns 23 per cent of the company.

Founder Jack Ma will be unloading stock, too, though the amount hasn't been established.

If you are hoping to scoop up some shares at the estimated IPO price of $60 to $66, you can forget it. Rumour has it that the entire IPO has been spoken for or "taken up," as they say on the Street. Though you might have a shot at the stock Yahoo and Ma are selling.

Wall Street is positively quivering over expectations of a "pop" or stock surge. The business of The Pop is a stock market sideshow, as investors (read mega-financial firms, institutional investors, etc.) stand to gain billions in the blink of an eye.

Of course, it could go the other way. Remember Facebook's face plant in 2012? The IPO debuted at $38 and quickly dropped by half. Still, the patient money is laughing, as Facebook now trades at nearly $80.

Call me a skeptic, but the numbers are a worry. For example, Bloomberg.com notes that Alibaba's operating income shot up 42 per cent in the second quarter of 2014, more than that of eBay and Amazon combined.

Net income has tripled and profit margins are 54 per cent. Putting the latter in perspective, margins at eBay are nearly 27 per cent while Amazon's are under six per cent.

The skeptical can't help wondering if any company, even one located in the massively expanding Asian market, could actually grow that quickly.

Ma soothed many last week when he noted Alibaba is being listed in New York rather than Hong Kong, because of the far more rigorous U.S. regulations.

That makes me feel better. Wait a minute! What about that little financial collapse on Wall Street in 2008? So much for regulations.

The Dutch event was being marketed as a protest, but participants said they were mostly looking forward to smacking friends and strangers with overripe tomatoes. Wearing goggles was strongly advised. PETER DEJONG/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

News worth sharing.

BUT WHICH ONE HAS THE BEST PIPES?

While campaign strategists and policy wonks spend long nights over stale pizza debating issues such as rapid transit, tax increment financing and democratic renewal, for the vast majority of Winnipeggers this election is about three things: roads, pipes and more roads.

Okay, maybe leadership and accountability get a bit of attention, too, but every poll released this year has put infrastructure renewal at the top of the list of voter concerns. And a campaign by the Manitoba Heavy Construction Association over the next several weeks will further drill home the message that the city is in a crisis situation on this issue.

That's why it's surprising none of the mayoral hopefuls has tried to become the undisputed, unapologetic champion for pipes and pavement.

It's not that good ideas don't exist. All of the major candidates have brought forward viable proposals that would help in some way.

URBAN COMPASS

Colin Fast

winnipeg@metronews.ca

Gord Steeves laid out a plan to sell civic properties, such as golf courses and parkades, to fund infrastructure. While his list of potential sales targets might be off, the concept is solid, as is Steeves's assertion that the city is lousy at managing major assets.

Judy Wasylycia-Leis promised to implement a modest property tax increase, and use a portion of that revenue to finance $64 million in new borrowing for regional and local streets.

Brian Bowman also pledged a small property tax increase, and said he could find $10 million in annual savings in the city's operating budget to redirect to infrastructure.

He also proposed forming a new partnership between the city and other governments to oversee a long-term roads plan for Winnipeg.

Paula Havixbeck has suggested increasing the use of public-private partnerships for construction work. P3s are essentially another form of borrowing, but they can sometimes allow projects to be completed more quickly and affordably.

Robert-Falcon Ouellette made the biggest splash with his promise on Sunday to borrow $250 million to fund an immediate surge in infrastructure spending. While the plan might sound expensive, waiting for roads and bridges to fail completely might ultimately be far more pricey.

Key to Ouellette's plan is focusing on core infrastructure. This means funding critical and strategic repairs on existing roads, bridges and water pipes, not building new overpasses, stadiums or museums.

If all these ideas were combined into a "super infrastructure strategy," then the city might be able to make a significant investment in rebuilding roads and pipes, improving mobility and livability, and growing the economy. But on their own, they're just not enough.

Obviously running a city is a lot more complicated than just one issue, but winning an election doesn't have to be. And all the candidates have so far missed the chance to own the road on the No. 1 thing in voters' minds.

Re: Vancouver feminists up in arms over Naked Sushi, published Sept. 10, 2014 (Naked sushi) is as perhaps as 'ancient' as the Honda civic, but newer than Astroboy. I have never found someone able to prove that the practice existed before the 1980s economic bubble in Japan, where it seems to have spread from Yakuza circles to some male-only executive night outs. Even the 'proof' that it existed in the early 1980s is based on the memory of a single reporter on Yakuza events, who recalled more than a decade later that he had once seen it done then. Before that, I can find no trace of the practice in painting, literature, history, journalism or any other source. So, enjoy your modern Japanese gastrofetish. Just stop trying to give it pastiche of 'ancient', unless by 'ancient', you mean like Duran Duran. Davi, posted to metronews.ca

Pop's new princess still a Lorde at heart

No royal blood. New Zealand teenager talks about her success, her creative impulses and the nature of celebrity

Metro Boston

Within the past 12 months, Ella Yelich-O'Connor has watched her debut single reach No. 1 and her debut album go platinum in the United States and New Zealand.

She has also sung a Nirvana song with surviving members of the band and watched Bruce Springsteen cover her biggest hit.

But despite this meteoric rise in popularity, the 17-year-old who calls herself Lorde promises she hasn't caved into the indulgences she criticized in Royals, the song that first put her on the map at this time last year. At least not all of them.

What's the most hypocritical thing you've done with your fame? The first line in Royals is, "I've never seen a diamond in the flesh," but surely you have by now.

Well I have, because my mom got engaged to my dad, so I've seen one of those now.

That's a real thing! She had never had a diamond ring before, so that line was for real!

But to be honest, I try to live as normally and simply as I can, because it's still kind of weird to me all the extra-gance you see in this business.

I don't really buy anything. I still think $100 is a lot of money, because it is a lot of money.

It seems kind of crazy to just change your standards and your minimums and maximums just because you have more of stuff.

Do you ever have time to sleep in this new bed?

Yeah, I do. I've probably slept in it like 100 times.

So you haven't trashed a hotel room yet? No Grey Goose or trippin' in the bathroom?

Not only do I not trash hotel rooms, but I actually try to clean them before I leave. Because I'm like, "Nobody should have to clean up my mess!" so I try to do it a little bit.

Out of all of the experiences you've been a part of in the past year, what stands out the most?

People always ask me that, and I often struggle to find something because when you are in these crazy situations every day, you just have to find a way to make them normal, because if you don't, you're just going to go insane.

But, to me, awards shows are always crazy, like just being at the VMAs.

That, to me, was very much like, "What am I doing here? How come I am allowed access to this room?"

There's a line in your more recent single, Tennis Court, where you say "Everything's cool when we're all in line for the throne, but I know it's not forever." Are you talking about fleeting fame there?

That line was more in reference to knowing that what I had with my friends and what we had in our hometown that felt like this kind of sanctuary to us wasn't going to last.

But it totally applies to fame as well.

Bumbling Bud may get spinoff

Much of the Married... With Children cast moved on to big things after it went off the air in 1997. Ed O'Neill landed Modern Family, Katey Sagal got a big part in Sons of Anarchy, and Christina Applegate has had leading roles in the Anchorman movies. Poor David Faustino, who played the hapless Bud, virtually disappeared. But there's talk that Bud's character might get a spinoff show and Applegate has hinted something is indeed in the works. "We're going to do something with Dave maybe. I don't know if it will be in character," she told the E! network.

Ariana has a Grande list of off-limits interview topics

STARGAZING
Malene Arpe
scene@metronews.ca

Subjects not allowed when interviewing Ariana Grande include dating, ex-boyfriends, her work on Sam & Cat, her co-star on Sam & Cat, and working with Justin Bieber. I don't blame her and have no doubt her fans would rather hear what she has to say about the Dow Jones and cod.

Cara Delevingne gets a tattoo of the word "bacon" on her foot. Bit of a mix-up. It was supposed to say "grumpy model" but the tattoo artist is a bad speller.

Kim Kardashian says that both Pharrell and Anna Wintour encouraged her and Kanye West to name their daughter North. That explains why Pharrell and Anna Wintour knowingly wink at each other each time they meet.

When Prince Harry turns 30, he and Prince William will inherit their mother's wedding dress. That's not slightly creepy at all and here are some ideas for what to do with it: 1) Make 200 place-mats. 2) Donate the fabric to a struggling parachute factory. 3) Put it in the attic, never open the box and walk around it without admitting you're walking around it every time you're fetching something else.

Charlie Hunnam explains that the pressure of having signed on to Fifty Shades of Grey gave him a nervous breakdown. On a tangentially related subject, if I see one more person reading that book in public, I will scream and gesticulate until they stop.

Kanye West shows us he's a real stand up guy

Maybe we can blame this one on the migraine, too. Kanye West is drawing ire for halting a performance in Sydney when his demand that every single person in the arena get on their feet wasn't met due to two unco-operative fans. "I can't do this show until everybody stand up," West told the crowd. "Unless you got a handicap pass and you get special parking and s—." Yeah, about that. West apparently spotted two audience members who were still seated, and when he singled them out, one waved her prosthetic limb at him, prompting an appropriate response from West of, "OK, you fine." He then turned his attention to the second one despite others trying to signal that the fan was actually wheelchair-bound and not just recalcitrant. According to the Daily Mail Australia, West would not continue with the show until he had staff confirm the non-standing offender was indeed in a wheelchair. He's nothing if not thorough.

Maybe a baby will quiet Bey and Jay breakup talk?

Divorce rumours were apparently just a summer thing, as Jay-Z and Beyoncé have a new look for fall: pregnancy talk! The rapper has launched new rounds of bun-in-the-oven speculation after a recent Paris concert where he changed one of the lyrics in Beach is Better to say, "Cause she pregnant with another one."

Sneaky one, that Jay-Z. But according to OK! magazine, there's more than hidden messages in songs going on. "For the last month, Jay has been fiercely protective of her, just like he was when she was expecting Blue Ivy," a source says. "He's been doing everything he can to ensure that Bey is in a stress-free bubble. He's informed their entire entourage that they need to use relaxed voices, mellow lighting and listen to only soft music, and he's said that all of the food Beyoncé eats should be organic. He's really doing his best to make sure that she's as comfortable and healthy as possible."

Darryl Hannah

Well ... OK! In the surprising but not actually that surprising when you think about it department, Darryl Hannah and Neil Young are reportedly an item — just a little over a month after Young split from his wife of 36 years. "They've been dating for months. They've taken no effort to even hide it," a source tells People magazine. "They've appeared at many, many protest rallies together over the past year. The fans have known about this for months." Dear lord, if that isn't the most hipster anonymous source quote in history. What, you only just heard about Darryl Hannah and Neil Young now? Loser. Anyway, Young even reportedly took regular Skype notes from Hannah on his recently recorded album and told others in the studio that she is his girlfriend. # You gotta fight now to save for your right to party after you retire

What's your future plan? Cut costs now to set money aside for a comfortable retirement

GAIL VAZ-OXLADE
Gail blogs daily at gailvazoxlade.com

Imagine you've retired. There. You're done working. Now you have all the time in the world to do all the things you've always wanted to do. You can sleep in late. You can have lunch on the deck, take a stroll to the park, volunteer at your local school or hospital. There's time to knit, time to garden, time to putter around in the workshop or craft-room.

It's nice to paint pictures of what life will be like when we get to the stage where we can do what we want when we want. No more boss. No more nine to five. No more paycheck.

Yeah, that's a fly in the ointment isn't it? It will be if you haven't given any thought to how you'll pay for life when the paycheques stop showing up.

One of the biggest challenges for the young-and-just-getting-started is finding the balance between setting money aside for the future and all the other stuff competing for attention. The student loan has to be paid off, there's a wedding to plan, and a down payment is a priority. Besides, retirement is decades away.

Visit the salon less often and sock away the difference for retirement. COLOURBOX

Dollars and per cents

You do have time. Unfortunately, the longer you take to start saving, the more you'll have to sock away. Start in your twenties and you can save as little as six per cent of your income. Wait until you're in your thirties and you'll have to jack it up to 10 per cent. Delay until you're in your forties and you'll need to squeeze 18 per cent out of cash flow to save enough to retire.

Ways to cut costs

Finding ways to cut costs so you have the money to save is as easy as increasing your insurance deductibles. Would you really make a claim on your car insurance for under $2,000? Do you know what that would do to your premiums? Same goes for similar claims on home insurance. Combine your home and auto insurance and save up to 15 per cent. Raise your car insurance deductible to $2,000 and watch your premium drop. Stick the difference into your emergency fund until you've saved your deductible. Once that's done, send the extra money to your retirement savings.

Small changes can add up to big savings

Small changes can mean huge savings over the long term. Switch to an accelerated weekly or bi-weekly payments on your mortgage. You'll make the equivalent of one extra monthly payment every year, which could save you four years' worth of interest. And since that extra payment is spread over the whole year, your cash flow never feels pinched.

If you have kids, don't ignore the free money. When you put money into a Registered Education Savings Plan, the government gives you money to help with your child's education. If you put $2,500 in the plan for little Susie, the feds will add $500. That's an immediate 20 per cent return. Hey, the less you have to fund Susie's education from your own pocket, the more you can sock away for your own future.

Use your RSP tax savings smartly. Pay down your mortgage; the objective should be to get to retirement debt free. Boost your next RRSP contribution so you save even more on taxes. Or use your savings to max out your Tax Free Savings Account.

Get thrifty

Find 10 bucks here and 20 there to sock away each month. Think about extending the time between when you do routine things: Get your hair coloured/cut/relaxed every six weeks instead of every four, cut back on your lawn maintenance/home cleaning service from once a week to once every two. And then there are the frivolities you'll want to eliminate completely: Borrow your books and magazines at the library instead of buying them, borrow DVDs from friends and family, and learn to shop in the thrift stores.

The closer you get to boarding the retirement train, the more prepared you need to be to deal with the changes. Perhaps the best way to save for the future is to practise living as if you're already retired. What better way to see how the retirement shoe fits than to try it on? Figure out how much income you will have and use that to calculate what you'll spend for expenses like food, entertainment, utilities, clothes, gifts, cable/cell, and travel. Use the money you're no longer spending as a last big push to boost your savings for the future.

Money 101. Two couples, one year to make them richer

Heading toward the savings finish line

In January, two Canadian couples took on the challenge to make over their finances and, together, they have improved their net worth by nearly $75,000. I have coached each couple about homebuying, debt reduction, living a frugal life and making savvy investment choices. These Metro Money Couples have three months left to achieve their 2014 goals.

Watch their progress as they head toward the finish line. – Lesley-Anne Scorgie

As they continue to save more money, Anne-Marie and Peter's desire to own a home grows stronger. SHUTTERSTOCK

Anne-Marie and Peter

Since January, Anne-Marie and Peter have improved their net worth by more than $44,000 thanks to major efforts towards debt reduction and a strong investment performance.

As the couple has become more financially confident, the desire to own a home has been growing stronger. Ideally, the couple would like to purchase a newer two-bedroom, two-bathroom condo or townhome priced less than $500,000 in the same Toronto neighbourhood in which they currently rent. This will require them to pull together a down payment of at least five to 10 per cent of the value of the home. For a $500,000 home, that equates to $25,000 to $50,000.

Anne-Marie and Peter plan to use the RRSP Homebuyer's Plan for part of the down payment. This program allows eligible first-time homebuyers to borrow up to $20,000 from their individual RRSPs for the down payment. But Anne-Marie and Peter only have $11,400 combined in their RRSPs and will likely need to borrow money from family for the remaining portion. As part of this month's homework, the couple will begin developing a plan to build up their down payment as quickly as possible.

Anne-Marie and Peter recap

This month Anne-Marie and Peter began the process of interviewing investment and insurance advisers. In order to find the right adviser, the pair is working through a basic checklist:

- Get referrals from trusted sources;
- Interview at least two to three advisers;
- Inquire about how each adviser plans to manage the investment portfolio and insurance needs;
- Determine the fees and associated level of service;
- Listen to their gut instinct. If the adviser is attentive and has a good track record of success, it's an excellent sign.

Anne-Marie and Peter have also gotten creative about improving their incomes.

Peter works in publishing and is hoping to publish some of his personal literary work in exchange for a publishing advance and royalty payments. Anne-Marie is also considering tutoring children in French once she finishes maternity leave.

Carolina and Jose

Through a home purchase, frugal living and debt repayment, Jose and Carolina have improved their net worth by nearly $30,000 since January.

Hampering their financial excitement, new homeowners Jose and Carolina were victims of Calgary's recent snowstorm. Many tree branches fell on their roof, causing damage and killing their largest tree. Despite insurance coverage, the estimated cost to repair the damage could be upwards of $1,000.

However, since adopting the two-third, one-third rule where the couple regularly applies two-thirds of their disposable income (money left over once all their bills have been paid) towards debt and one-third towards savings, they are in the fortunate position to handle the cost of the repairs.

To boost their cash flow this month, Jose will be selling his 15-year-old car for approximately $1,500 and relying on his company vehicle for transportation. Again, using the two-third, one-third rule, the couple will apply the majority of the money towards their line of credit balance, which is their highest interest debt. Jose and Carolina con-

She also plans to post online classified ads for piano lessons at $35 per hour. Jose has armed himself with market data on competitive salaries for safety co-ordinator positions in Calgary, and plans to use this information in his upcoming salary review.

Jose is also working through a negotiation for compensation from a pho-

How to hold productive office meetings like nobody's business

Let's talk. Eight ways to save time and get more done during a business meeting

GANDHI

Metro in New York City

You're at a meeting inside your office's conference room. You most likely feel:

- a) bored out of your mind
- b) confused as to what the point of the discussion is
- c) annoyed that you were pulled away from your desk
- or d) a combination of all of the above.

If there's one thing most office workers have strong opinions about, it's unproductive meetings. But despite all of the evidence, little has been done to change the way most companies conduct business. We recently chatted with consultants Dick and Emily Axelrod about their new book, Let's Stop Meeting Like This: Tools to Save Time and Get More Done, and what managers can do to fix common issues.

Stay on track with a schedule

"There should be ground rules for how long anyone can speak," says Emily. Having a designated timekeeper who makes sure things stay on schedule and helps moderate discussions can make a big difference.

Make it a point to get everyone comfortable
"You want everyone to feel

Tired of listening to your colleagues yammer on during meetings? Authors Dick and Emily Axelrod say there should be a limit to how long anyone can speak. COLOURBOX connected and have a collaborative space," says Dick. "If there are new people, then you really have to have time for people to get to know each other."

Give everyone a chance to speak

Letting one person dominate a meeting is a recipe for disaster. "One thing to do is to institute a rule that says, 'Before we discuss anything, we should go around the room so that everyone has time to speak,'" advises Dick.

Be clear about the purpose

"It's important to ask, 'What are we trying to create here?'" says Dick. "When you know where you are and what you want to create, you begin to see things that you didn't see before." One big complaint the Axelrods hear about meetings is that they often go off-track, wasting the time and patience of employees. "We had one person say, 'All my boss talks about is his family during the meeting and we have to stay and listen,'" Dick says.

Know what a successful meeting looks like

Managers, says Dick, should work to make sure that employees "leave a meeting feeling that it was time well spent.

There should be a little challenge," he continues. "People should feel that they learned something new. What you don't want is a meeting where you're sitting there thinking, 'All of my work is piling up on my desk.'"

Build in breaks so people can check their phones

On the other hand, sometimes there are simply long meetings that everyone must attend. In those cases, Emily recommends working five-to-10-minute breaks into the schedule to ensure that you have everyone's focus while the discussion is going on.

Timing is everything

Do you have a complicated rule change or proposal that you have to roll out soon? "If it's a content-heavy meeting, morning is a good time," says Dick. "Afternoon is the time for meetings that require lots of activity."

Let anyone who seems bored or distracted leave

The Axelrods say they once had a client who made all meetings voluntary because he was tired of dealing with employees who looked distracted or bored or were constantly on their phones. "If he gets the idea that they'd rather be somewhere else, he just asks them if that's the case," says Dick. "He trusts that people know how to manage their time."

saves you from having to open and close your barbecue hood, keeping the temperature consistent.

It's best to start brushing the glaze over top when the chicken is close to finished cooking to prevent the meat from burning or catching fire.

When it comes to selecting peaches for grilling, I recommend freestone peaches rather than the clingstone, as they are easier to separate from the pit when slicing and are delicious when eaten on their own.

Directions

1. Combine all ingredients for glaze in small bowl. Divide in half.

2. Brush chicken with half of the glaze.

3. On barbecue, grill chicken breasts just until temperature reaches 165 F or no longer pink inside, about 15–20 minutes, brushing continually with glaze near the end of the cooking time.

4. During the last 5 minutes of grilling, place peach halves on barbecue and grill on both sides just until tender.

5. Serve chicken with grilled peaches and remaining half of peach glaze. Garnish with toasted sesame seeds.

- Fresh basil, chopped

grape, are perfect for an (almost) autumn bruschetta.

They match well with the flavours of the olive oil, goat cheese and garlic. Serve them alongside a salad, soup or main course.

You can bake your toast early in the day, then finish off the recipe just before serving.

1. Preheat oven to 450 F.

2. Place baguette on baking tray sprayed with vegetable oil.

3. Bake for 8 – 10 minutes or just until browned.

4. Sauté tomatoes on high heat for 5 minutes or just until beginning to blister. Place in bowl along with olive oil, garlic and salt and pepper.

5. Spread goat cheese over baguette slices

6. Divide tomato mixture over top and sprinkle with fresh basil.

Is this kid the Jets' new Jacob Trouba?

Good buddies. Jets' 19-year-old prospect looking to follow in his friend's footsteps

Josh Morrissey would like nothing more than to follow Jacob Trouba's quick path to the NHL.

He just doesn't want to give his friend and fellow defence-man too much credit in public.

Morrissey is among the Winnipeg Jets' prospects taking part in a four-team rookie tournament ahead of the start of NHL training camps — the same event where Trouba kicked off what would become an outstanding 2013-14 rookie season that culminated with a sixth-place finish in Calder Trophy voting.

"If you can mimic what Trouba has done, obviously you would. He had a fantastic year last year," said Morrissey. "He's one of my good friends. I won't pump him up too much, but if I could do anything like Trouba did, I would be happy."

"Seeing what he did gives me motivation to do the same thing."

Trouba — who was drafted by the Jets ninth overall in 2012 and finished with 10 goals and 19 assists in 65 games with Winnipeg last season — had the benefit of playing against older players in U.S. college hockey at the University of Michigan for one season, while Morrissey has spent the last three seasons with the WHL's Prince Albert Raiders.

The 19-year-old Morrissey is the same age that Trouba was at this time last year and said he has learned a lot from watching how the Rochester, Minn., product dealt with the pressure of making the jump to the NHL.

"The biggest thing I can take from him last year would be that he's a pretty easy-going guy who doesn't get flustered," said Morrissey, the 13th pick in 2013. THE CANADIAN PRESS

In detail

The smooth-skating Morrissey had 28 goals and 45 assists in 59 games for Prince Albert last season before joining Winnipeg's AHL affiliate, the St. John's IceCaps, for eight regular-season and 20 playoff games.

Other players that look set to join up with the main Jets' camp, beginning on Thursday, include forwards Nikolaj Ehlers, Nic Petan and Scott Kosmachuk.

Rivers-Gates combo pushes Chargers past Seahawks

The San Diego Chargers used an old, familiar combo — Philip Rivers to Antonio Gates — to upset the defending Super Bowl champion Seattle Seahawks.

Gates had three touchdown catches, including a spectacular one-handed grab, and the Chargers controlled the tempo to keep Russell Wilson and Marshawn Lynch off the field to beat the Seahawks 30-21 victory Sunday.

The 34-year-old Gates scored on catches of 8, 8 and 21 yards.

The three touchdown receptions tied Gates' career high. Rivers was 28 of 37 for 284 yards.

Rays dampen Jays' magic September

Sean Rodriguez' sacrifice fly in the 10th inning gave Tampa Bay a 6-5 win over the Toronto Blue Jays on Sunday as the Rays recovered from blowing a 5-1 lead.

The Rays came into the game having lost four of their last eight games, throwing away leads of 4-0, 4-0, 3-0 and 2-0 along the way. But they hung on for the win this time after mounting their own comeback.

Toronto had won five of its last six and 10 of 13 since Aug. 30, during which time it has outscored the opposition 70-30.

Zach Collaros and the Hamilton Tiger-Cats created a three-way tie for first place in the CFL's East Division on Sunday.

Collaros threw two touchdown passes and the Tiger-Cats defence shut down the league's best running game en route to a 28-3 victory over the Saskatchewan Roughriders.

"It was a complete football game today in all three phases, which is what you want to see," said Hamilton head coach Kent Austin. "We've gotten better as a football team."

Hamilton (3-7) moves into a three-way tie for first in the East with Toronto and Montreal, which both lost on the weekend.

And Saskatchewan, missing injured quarterback Darian Durant, saw its league-best winning streak end at seven games. The 8-3 Riders fall into second spot with Edmonton in the mighty CFL West Division.

Collaros threw touchdown passes to Luke Tasker, and Terrell Sinkfield scored on a 58-yard punt return for the victory in front of a sellout crowd of 18,135 fans at Tim Hortons Field.

"It feels good to win," said Collaros, who completed 29 of 36 pass attempts for 287 yards, two TDs and one interception.

"I thought the offensive line did a great job all day. That's a heck of a D-line over there."

Ticat kicker Justin Medlock hit field goals from 50 and 51 yards and added a 57-yard punt single, but hit the left upright in the third quarter from 43 yards out. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Horoscopes by Sally Brompton

♈ Aries

March 21 - April 20

The final piece of a puzzle you have struggled with will fall into place over the next few days. Once you can see the entire picture, you will know why it took so long to make sense.

♉ Taurus

April 21 - May 21

While something may seem obvious to you, others may struggle to understand what you are talking about. Explain in plain and simple language.

♊ Gemini

May 22 - June 21

You may have to devote the daylight hours to work-related matters but once the Sun goes down your thoughts will be on having fun.

♋ Cancer

June 22 - July 23

According to the planets you should follow a course you have navigated profitably before rather than set out in a new direction. There is no need for any type of major change.

♌ Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

You can sense that something is wrong and you know better than to ignore your instincts. Take the initiative and act immediately on your suspicions.

♍ Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

You may not understand how your mind has arrived at a certain conclusion but deep down you know it is the right one for you. Come the end of the week it will make sense.

♎ Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

Try not to criticize yourself. If you made a mistake of some kind then learn from it quickly and move on. Today's failure can be tomorrow's success.

♏ Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

Think positively about what you are required to do by people in positions of authority. It may not be what you want to do but the bottom line is they have the power and you do not.

♐ Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

You know a good thing when you see it and what you see today will get your mind racing. How can you make it work for you? Don't let others tell you it's selfish to think that way. It's just common sense.

♑ Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

Why are you worrying for no good reason? Planets suggest that nothing will happen without your say-so, so try not to be so defensive about life.

♒ Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

Don't be judgmental of people whose lifestyles differ from your own. Maybe the world would be a better place if everyone was just like you but that isn't going to happen.

♓ Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

You need to resolve a dispute with a loved one or co-worker and you need to do it right now. Say sorry and move on.
